THE WORLD.

THIS mighty volume, which the world we call,
Should we with care but once peruse it all,
And read his art who first could give it frame,
And with his power the wildest powers tame,
His providence in every page would shine,
And his paternal love in every line;
But we, like fools, are pleas'd with outside gold,
On the great writer's sense ne'er taking hold;
Or if ought should by chance our mind engage,
Tis some vain picture, or an useless page.

ABSTRACT

Of a late report made by the Secretary of the Treasury to the Committee of Ways and Means.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, Jan. 17. SIR—I have deemed it hitherto my duty to wait, with deference and respect, for a decision upon the measures which I had the honor to suggest to the committee of ways & means on the 17th Oct. last. But the rapid approach to the termination of the session of Congress, induces me again to trespass on your attention, earlier, perhaps, than is consistent with a satisfactory view of the state of the treasury, as some important plans are still under legislative discussion. I have now, however, the honor to submit to the consideration of the committee of ways and means, the following additional statements and propositions.

Condition of the Treasury in 1814.
Balance of dues from the treasury for 1813.	$8,131,313
Appropriations of 1814.	38,900,916
Dues on account of the public debt.	11,560,277
Total demands on the treasury in 1814.	57,694,377
The cash in the treasury & its various resources, in revenue, loans, & treasury notes, to meet those demands, amounted to	57,190,500
But the actual receipts, including the cash in the treasury at the commencement, amounted out of all those resources, only to,	40,007,660
Leaving a deficit of more than,	17,180,000
The actual payments made from the treasury in 1814, amounted to	88,273,619
There being a balance of cash in the treasury at present, of	1,734,042
The unsatisfied demands on the treasury in 1814, amounted to	19,420,971
And the amount of unexpended resources and means to raise money, was	23,896,391
Leaving a surplus of means of	8,975,909
Only six millions of the unexpended resources, consist of outstanding revenue and cash in the treasury. There are consequently more than 13 million dollars urgent demands for the service of the last year, which the treasury cannot meet but by loans or the issuance of treasury notes.
Condition of the treasury for 1815.
The civil, military and naval expenditures necessary for the year 1815, as foreseen at present,	$40,538,889
Demands on account of public debt	15,490,145
Total,	56,029,034
Ways and means already provided for raising money, will produce only	13,125,909
There is hence a balance of nearly 41 millions to be provided for this year. It is proposed to raise this sum by additional taxes, 5 millions—15 millions treasury notes, and by loans 25 millions.

THE WAR

Has lasted more than two years, and what have we got by it? Not a cent; nay worse—we have expended in this losing trade millions of dollars, and some blood. This is the language of every huckster, and what the wisest man in the country will not pretend to contradict.

Just so, a man in the peaceable pursuit of business, meets in the street a proud, insolent fellow, who bids him get out of his way—knocks off his hat—twigs him by the nose—and spits in his face, and kicks his shins; and the silly dog, in stead of retiring, as prudence would dictate, with his tail between his legs, turns indignantly upon his assailant, and gives him blow for blow, and after a long and bloody conflict, comes off second best; true he has convinced lookers-on, that he is not to be trod upon with perfect impunity—he has lamed the offending arm of his adversary, and, by knocking some of his front teeth, has disabled him from spitting beyond his own chin for the rest of his life. But what has he gained by it? Not a cent; on the contrary, he has ruined a fine broadcloth coat in the fray—got sadly bruized, and incurred a doctor's bill, which will cost him the spare change of a twelvemonth to discharge. Silly dog!—But softly! Has he saved nothing? Has he not preserved a character for manhood?—which, in the opinion of the world, stamps the current value upon every thing, is worth all the broadcloth ever imported and more than all the trash that ever passed under the denomination of dollars and cents. Let him who doubts, reverse the picture, and instead of the smile of approbation, contemplate the grin of contempt or, rather, with him who does not contemplate the force of this logic as applicable to the society of nations as of men, it would be as idle to multiply words, as it would be to talk of colors to the born blind, or to the deaf about the tune of Yankee Doodle.—N. York Advocate.

We have the pleasure to announce a noble and generous act of Captain JOHN ORDRONNAUX, late commander of the privateer brig Prince of Neufchatel, who visited the Prison-Ship in this town yesterday, and distributed between three and four hundred dollars among the Prisoners captured by him during his late cruise; he also gave Capt Webb 20 dollars for the benefit of the remainder of the Prisoners. We hope the repeated acts of benevolence towards the British prisoners of war among us will be duly reciprocated, and thereby tend to alleviate the condition of our unfortunate countrymen in captivity.

Salem Register, 25th inst.

SPIRITED ACT.

BOSTON, Jan. 27.

On the night of the 27th of October last, three American prisoners of war, (one of whom was Captain Bowen, arrived in town) all late officers of the privateer Yankee Lass, having had permission to go on shore from the Prison Ship at St. George's, Bermuda, for a few hours, took advantage of a grand ball that had been given, (and at which were present most of the officers, both naval and military) stole the long boat of an English ship lying at the wharf, and with no other weapon than a pump-break, which they took from an old sloop, pushed off from the shore, with an intent to seize the Commodore's tender (an unarmed schooner of about 70 tons, lying about one mile and a half from the Goree sloop of war, in which they fortunately succeeded.—There were ten seamen on board of this schooner, two of whom only were on deck—these were immediately drove below, and the hatches, &c. shut down, when, to the great chagrin and disappointment of our daring countrymen, they found that there was nothing on deck to secure the prisoners down—they, however, undaunted, immediately cut the cables, and made sail on the vessel, two of them pressing upon the hatches to keep them down, and threatening the Englishmen with instant death, in case they attempted to come up.

Having got the schooner under way, they felt themselves tolerably secure, having only the fort to pass, the fire of which they determined to stand, rather than surrender. But a new misfortune awaited them; for in going down the harbor, being unacquainted, they ran the tender on shore; and owing to the impracticability of leaving the vessel to carry out a keedge to warp her off with, (in which case the enemy would have regained possession of her, our people being so few in number) and seeing no hope of getting off again, during the night, they were reluctantly compelled to abandon the enterprise—having, therefore, got every thing ready, they left her in the same boat they came in, landed unmolested, and went on board the prison ship. Surprising as it may seem, although diligent search was made for the persons concerned in this affair, it was never known who they were! Suspensions, however, justly rested on the Americans as the perpetrators.

CONGRESS.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

BATTLES OF ORLEANS.

Mr. Troup of Geo. from the committee on Military Affairs, made a report recommending the adoption of the following resolve:

Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the thanks of Congress be and they are hereby presented to Major General Jackson, and through him to the officers and men under his command, for their gallantry and good conduct, in defeating the enemy before the City of New-Orleans, in successive battles fought on the 23d of December, 1814, and 1st and 8th of January, 1815; in which a veteran army, formidable in numbers as in discipline, commanded by renowned Generals, was thrice beaten and driven back with great loss, and in the battle of the 8th of January, with immense slaughter, by a militia force hastily collected for the defence of that city, aided by a small body of regular troops; thus illustrating the patriotic defence of the country with brilliant achievement, and signaling the Americans by steady perseverance, incessant vigilance, patient suffering, undaunted firmness, and in victory moderation and clemency: And that the President of the United States be requested to cause a Gold Medal to be struck with suitable emblems and devices, and presented to Major General Jackson, in testimony of the high sense entertained by Congress of events so memorable, and services so eminent.

Take Notice.

THE subscriber begs leave to inform his friends, that having dissolved the late partnership, is bound to close all his accounts as quick as possible—therefore sincerely hopes he will not be compelled to take measures that will be very disagreeable, to enforce payment. All reasonable men will be readily convinced that once a year at least, their accounts ought to be closed. And the subscriber takes this opportunity of returning his sincere thanks to his former friends and customers, for the liberal support he has received from them ever since his commencement in business.

Mr. WILLIAM N. LANE and the subscriber having purchased out the present stock of Goods on hand, offers them for sale as usual, at the old stand, Whiskey, Feathers and Tow Linen received in payment at cash price.

EDUCATION.

MR. LEWIS, Principal of the Winchester Academy, advertises that he has taken charge of the above Institution, in which he instructs youth in the theory and practice of the various branches of academic study.

His method or system of education is admirably calculated to advance his pupils in the principles of language, and facilitate them in their progress towards a refined and complete classic education.

In compliance with the solicitations of his friends, Mr. L. wishing to render himself more advantageous and useful to an enlightened public, proposes (when there shall be a sufficient number of applicants) to open a school on a new plan, containing two classes only, which shall divide his attention, the first of the Learned Languages, (the Latin and Greek,) and the second of English Grammar, to which he will devote his time and talents, and he pledges himself to teach young gentlemen of sprightly talents the languages in twenty months in such a manner and by such a system, as they shall have as perfect a knowledge of those branches as to spend four years in the common practice.

English Grammar will be taught to youth of genius in ten weeks upon the same principles and by the same system.

The branches of pure and mixed Mathematics, the various hands of Penmanship and Belies-Letres, will be taught in a department devoted to them in the most correct manner.—Also the rudiments of Literature, Spelling, Reading, &c. separated from the other rooms.

Lectures will be given on Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, and Chemistry when the schools are duly arranged.

For terms, apply to the Principal.
