ON READING.

All the pursuits of man in this world have one universal goal—happiness; various indeed are the meandering paths of different travellers to reach this so much desired spot.

edge from the grave, which can have no interest in deceiving us; the experience of the dead is unquestionable.
The solidity of their conversation is infinitely preferable to the vivacity of the living.

FROM THE RHODE ISLAND REPUBLICAN.

MARRIED,
In London, on the 2d of May, after making a deal of fuss about it, Mr.
GEORGE L. COBBOURG to Miss CHAR-LOTTE A. GUELPH, daughter of Mr.
George F. Guelph, commonly called the Prince Regent of England.

KNOXVILLE, June 29.

INDIAN MURDER.

On the 18th of June, Vincent Davis, was murdered by the Cherokee Indians, on the road leading from this place to Georgia. The circumstances attending this deed, as detailed to his excellency the Governor on oath, are as follows:
The deceased and three or four others, with their waggon and teams stopped at the Cherokee village on Rock creek, to feed, one of the party went to an Indian cabin to get fire and was there abusively denied by an Indian called Goodwoman; another Indian present, gave fire to the white man, who set off on his return to the waggon, and was followed by Goodwoman, who was intoxicated, and who on approaching, threw his knife, and struck the white man on the elbow without injury.
On his calling the other waggoners to his relief, some other Indians took Goodwoman away, who, after a short time returned and after much abuse, attempted to stab young Davis, who avoided him. He then attempted to get hold of an axe, but was prevented, and again tried to stab Davis, with his knife —who continued to avoid him, until one of the whites called out "defend yourself." Davis then took up a hatchet, and on Goodwoman's again approaching him with his knife, struck him on his neck, and wounded him mortally. Three other Indians (two armed with rifles,) shortly after came to the camp, took young Davis to where the wounded Indian lay, and tied him (so tight says one of the affidavits that his hands turned black) and there, detained him until Goodwoman died when they shot Davis dead on the spot.

Dr. Buchanan

HAS just opened an assortment of FRESH MEDICINES at his shop, opposite the north end of the Court House.
He will attend families by the year, or for a shorter period, on as reasonable terms as any other Physician in the place.
In acute diseases, when every hope of recovery is gone, and the patient is even apparently dying, he is anxious to be sent for, and trusts it will not be deemed improper, in this public manner, to tender his services in such cases. Every Physician wants business of course—but he has motives of humanity, as well as of interest, for requesting a call in cases of the above description, in which, if he should not be successful he will make no charge.
