

POETRY.

FROM A LONDON PAPER.

THE ORPHAN, AND LORD LINSEY WOOLSEY.

Fifty, my Lord, the wretched plight Of a lone Orphan, faint and weary;

I have no friend, I have no food, Alas! I know not where to wander;

"Young Gypsy if your tale be true, Say where your parents' life departed?"

She sought my Sire among the dead, And fill upon his bosom gory!"

And what is 'glory' my good Lord, Will it relieve the Orphan's hunger?

"The nation, child, will see you fed, Posterity will learn your story;

He said—and with a hasty pace, From the lone Orphan whistling parted;

Then to her aid a soldier flew, Who had overheard her artless story;

"Come, Orphan, to my arms," he cried, And I will screen thee from the weather;

"I have a pension and a cot, Where thou shalt live till I am hoary;

Public Notice.

To all those who lost property during the late war. LESLIE COMBS informs all such as have lost waggons and teams, or horses or arms furnished by themselves, during the late war, by unavoidable accident, as by death while in service and the like—that if they can obtain and produce to him in Lexington, his office opposite Wickliffe's tavern, the certificates of their captains or other commanding officers, stating the following facts on oath, to wit, "That A. B. was attached to my command (at time) and was in possession of a certain horse (or wagon) worth $ which was lost—(state in what manner)—I do further certify that I have never given any other certificate but this or these facts, &c." If there be no officer's certificate to be obtained, then other proof on oath will be admitted.

Public Notice.

When these are produced by the individual having a claim to be liquidated, accompanied by a power of attorney with the county and certificate of the eldest magistrate affixed, he can obtain the amount due him respectively, by application at Washington city—where he pledges himself to make.
